

SUSTAINABILITY OF THE SPANISH WINE: “LA FAMILIA TORRES”

Mariam Tkhinvaleli

PhD Student of GTU

Jemma Saakyan

PhD Student of GTU

ABSTRACT

“Familia Torres” is a Spanish wine producer and marketer with over a century of experience in traditional wine production, which is the principal source of value for the company. Investments were made in projects including the capture and storage of CO₂ in an algal bed or the acquisition of natural yeasts. The entire organization is focused on producing a product that is as clear and biologically acceptable as possible. (2021, Emilia Nuez)

* * * *

“Familia Torres” can apply for certification based on specified criteria in a regulation with the objective of improving and promoting sustainability through four pillars if they meet a set of criteria (points). As an environmentally conscious organization, the company is particularly concerned about how climate change would affect the wine industry. Torres Family (2018)

Based on the Ethics and Social Responsibility concept, the Familia Torres Supplier Policy sets the general framework for assuring the minimum requirements that suppliers must meet in order to be part of the supply chain. This policy applies to all providers at the time of approval. Marc Rovira (Marc Rovira, 2021)

“Familia Torres” manages to occupy with other widely prevalent problems while actively participating in climate change programs. Familia Torres, for example, has collaborated with the Mas Albornà Foundation, which promotes the employability of people with intellectual disabilities, since 1988. Torres Family (2018)

Exports have been one of the company's pillars, with “Familia Torres” wines now available in over 150 countries.

Familia Torres has around 1,300 hectares of vineyards in Spain, where a variety of grape varieties are grown. In addition to the well known Carignan, Grenache, Monastrell, Parellada, Sumoll, and Xarello varieties, the Ancestral Varieties Project has recovered Forcada, Querol, Gonfaus, Pirene, and Moneu, five previously unknown indigenous grapes with exceptional potential for producing high-quality wines in Catalonia. Torres cultivates both indigenous (Albario in Ras Baixas, Tinto Fino in Ribera del Duero, and Tempranillo in Rioja) and imported (Cabernet Sauvignon, Cabernet Franc, Syrah, and Riesling) grapes across the rest of Spain. Torres Family (2018)

Bodegas Torres holds five brands in Spain: - Torres Family Wines are produced by the parent company in Penedès, Catalunya, Conca de Barberà, Costers del Segre, and Priorat.

- La Carbonera is a made-up character. There is a winery in the DO Ca Rioja.

- Magar's Bazaar There is a winery in the DO Rueda.

- Cielo's Pago A winery in the DO Ribera del Duero.

- Pazo Torre Pénelas There is a winery in the DO Ras Baixas.

Supply chain management is crucial not only for product quality assurance, but also for spreading Familia Torres' values and principles throughout the whole supply chain. As a result, it has established procedures and policies to aid it in identifying and managing supply chain risks.

The Familia Torres Supplier Policy, based on the Ethics and Social Responsibility model, sets the general framework for assuring the minimum requirements that suppliers must meet in order to be part of the supply chain. This policy is applicable to all providers at the time of approval. As a result, they must meet the same rigorous requirements as Familia Torres. (Marc Rovira, 2021)

Familia Torres has always strived for success while minimizing environmental impact. In 2007, in response to a global trend of rising temperatures, the corporation decided to increase its efforts to care for the land and safeguard the environment, identifying the fight against climate change as one of the core pillars of its environmental strategy. Torres Family (2018)

Torres & Earth launched a sustainability campaign in 2008 with the goal of reducing CO₂ emissions by 30% per bottle between 2008 and 2020.

Familia Torres invests 11 percent of its income in the environment and climate change each year, with a focus on energy efficiency, renewable energy, and ecologically friendly transportation, among other things.

In 2018, the total investment made since the program's commencement topped 15 million euros. 2020 (Winepaths)

Bodegas Torres has developed a website containing wine-related content and news, as well as discounts, an open line with corporate specialists, courses, and an online store. Customer service can be either reactive or proactive.

- Proactive: solicit direct client feedback on a number of topics to avoid future dissatisfaction.

- Reactive: a response to client feedback.

It's worth emphasizing that the reactive system also covers internal events that may have an influence on the client. Familia Torres will be able to contact the consumer, inform them of the problem, and offer alternative solutions.

This 360o customer service management reaffirms Familia Torres' dedication to communication and transparency, two key parts of customer delight.

In this line, the Customer Service department produces a monthly report that summarizes statistical data on inputs handled, such as volume, severity, type/reasons, response times, economic assessments, and so on.

In addition to the communication channels described above, customer service is available on all Familia Torres web pages.

Familia Torres implemented a corporate software solution in 2018 with the purpose of allowing future customer segmentation and the execution of better-suited surveys, as well as increasing survey frequency to identify areas for improvement and take action as soon as possible.

Finally, Familia Torres conducts tourist satisfaction surveys in its key vineyards in order to gather feedback on visitor experiences and ecotourism projects. The most representative poll is one conducted at the Penedès winery's Visitor Centre, which is based on the number of visitors. This survey received a score of 4.73 out of 5 in 2017, and a score of 4.61 out of 5 in 2018, keeping a level of visitor satisfaction above 92 percent.

When it comes to social media, "La familia Torres" is also highly active. They are devoted to publicizing their news on social media channels, ensuring that their users are always the first to learn about them. They make a point of documenting and sharing their yearly, monthly, and other meetings and presentations with their fans. We conducted research and were able to develop a table to display the current state of the winery from the side.

According to the value chain, after-sales service generates the most value because this information is obtained from customers, allowing changes to be made within some processes and providing customers with a product that they can perceive its value, as it is desired that the product be what you want or expect. This after-sales service is backed up by the company's web platform, which offers its clients services such as marketing, wine information and an online support network with corporate specialists to guarantee that consumers completely grasp the brand or product to be eaten. This service will increase customer loyalty.

The market research should not focus on obtaining information on clients that a company already has and knows, because the majority of them are familiar with the classic wines produced, making it difficult for them to accept another wine just because it follows market trends. As a result, information should be acquired from potential new product consumers, beginning with customers who drink wine for pleasure, health, and not to become intoxicated, such as pregnant women, athletes, and anyone looking for a drink. Participating in social events while leading a healthy lifestyle. 2021 (Joana Uribe)

METHODOLOGY

On Google and Google Scholar, searches for "La Familia Torres Report" and "La Familia Torres Sustainability" turned up articles about the various efforts.

Following that, specialized web pages containing similar articles and news were browsed. For the precise information, official reports, educational dossiers from various organizations, as well as the original reports, were used. Additionally, news stories from foreign newspapers were examined. The following aspects of the campaign's message, tone, purpose, graphic design, country, promoting organization, broadcast media, and target audience were the focus of the content study.

Conclusion

"La Familia Torres" is a successful winemaking enterprise that simplifies many operations simply by attempting to progress everything and push the future to link to as much power as possible from new technology.

There are not many businesses in the world that aim to earn a profit while also being concerned about the ecology and the current state of the globe.

Familia Torres is committed to producing shared benefits, and its tax policy reflects its ideals of openness and morality. Because of this concept, none of its enterprises is situated in tax havens. Management works with the Board of Directors to define the tax strategy and policy for limiting and managing tax risks. Along with conforming to the legal requirements of the countries in which it operates and operating in the best interests of society, it makes sure that the tax data given to stakeholders is accurate.

BIBLIOGRAPHY:

1. Charo Toribio, Congreso AECOC, 2020
2. Emilia Nuñez, 2021. Forbes: "Viticultura regenerativa, un paso más en la lucha contra el cambio climático"
3. Familia Torres, Corporate Social Business Report, 2018
4. Joana Ubire, "Bodegas Torres: "Ser el vino más admirado de Europa no es fácil. Así lo hemos conseguido", 2021
5. Marc Rovira, "Las viñas de Torres vuelven al origen", 2021
6. Natalie Chladek, "Why do you need sustainability in your business strategy", 2019
7. Organisation "IWCA" (International Wineries for Climate Action", 2019
8. Wine Business Blog, Mary Jorgensen, "Torres Family Committed to Sustainability, Promoting Efforts to Slow Climate Change Around the World", 2018